Art Unit: 2622

1. Claims 1-18 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory double patenting over claims 1-4 and 6-15 of U. S. Patent No. 6,704,055 since the claims, if allowed, would improperly extend the "right to exclude" already granted in the patent.

The subject matter claimed in the instant application is fully disclosed in the patent and is covered by the patent since the patent and the application are claiming common subject matter, as follows:

features of instant claim 1 are fully covered by more narrow patented claim 1;

features dependent instant claim 2 are also covered by patented claim 1; instant dependent claims 3-5 correspond directly to patented claims 2-4, respectively;

features of dependent instant claim 6 (with base claim 1) are covered by patented claim 10;

features of instant claim 7 are fully covered by patented claim 6;

features of dependent instant claim 8 are also covered by patented claim 6;

instant dependent claims 9 and 10 correspond directly to patented claims 7 and 8, respectively;

features of dependent instant claim 12 (with base claim 17) are covered by patented claim 10;

features of instant claim 13 are fully covered by more narrow patented claim 11;

features dependent instant claim 14 are also covered by patented claim 11; and dependent instant claims 15-18 correspond directly to patented claims 12-15, respectively.

Allowing these claims (based on their relationships to the patented claims listed above) of the instant application would result in an unjustified time-wise extension of the monopoly granted for the invention defined by claims 1-4 and 6-15 of US Patent 6,704,055.

Furthermore, there is no apparent reason why applicant was prevented from presenting claims corresponding to those of the instant application during prosecution of the application which matured into a patent. See In re Schneller, 397 F.2d 350, 158 USPQ 210 (CCPA 1968). See also MPEP § 804.

2. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the “right to exclude” granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1, 7 and 13 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Liou et al. (cited by applicant).

The system of Liou (noting particularly Figs. 7-9, 13 and 14) involves detecting scene cuts and pull-down formats (e.g. col. 14 lines 49-52), which 3:2 conversion ratio is exclusively applied to the NTSC frame/field format which involves 60 Hz field rate forming the 30 Hz frame rate (NTSC mentioned in col. 24 line 25). Liou generates from the video sequence an accumulation of absolute value sums of the difference between two fields (characteristically separated a frame apart as even and odd fields) over a common set of pixel positions (e.g. fig. 8; col. 2 lines 49-57. From that pixel-to-pixel correspondence data Liou generates frame/field identifiers using fuzzy logic (e.g. Fig. 9; col. 20 lines 54-64), the respective difference data being assigned a binary value (i.e. one of a two-symbol set: col. 16 lines 21-24; col. 20 lines 28-31). The scene cut or 3:2 pull-down format is thereby identified based on the pattern generated by the classified field/frame sequence (noting the composite system shown in Fig. 7), thereby meeting claims 1 and 13.

As for claim 7, Liou characterizes the sizes (i.e. quantities or values) of the difference data per sequence of consecutive fields/frames to identify pattern of the series using the fuzzy logic test (noting Fig. 7).

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
